INDOOR AIR QUALITY ISSUES: The Big 5 Environmental Risks on Construction Projects

Speaker: Jeremy Jernigan, CIH, CSP, CHMM
Regional Scientist
PSI

Jeremy Jernigan began with PSI in 1998, and is currently a Regional Scientist for Environmental Services. Jeremy is a graduate of the University of West Florida, with a Bachelor of Science in Environmental Studies. He provides comprehensive industrial hygiene services nationwide to address chemical, physical, and biological hazards and stressors in the workplace. Mr. Jernigan has consulted for several Department of Defense and other federal facilities, and maintains a varied private client base that consists of multi-site and global companies

Key learning objectives include:

- Environmental and industrial hygiene issues that can derail a project if not properly managed
- Overview and case studies of scenarios related to mold & asbestos
- Industry trend and regulatory updates for asbestos, silica and dust discharges
- Legionella issues resulting in fatalities
