THE BASICS OF INSURANCE, BONDS & PERFORMANCE SECURITY

Presentation Overview

Construction law attorneys David Cook and Mark Hanrahan will cover the basics of insurance, bonds, and performance security. Insurance is perhaps the most misunderstood or under appreciated aspects of construction projects. Yet it is found in most construction contracts. This session will cover the various types of insurance, what they are intended to cover, and what they will not cover. This session will also cover the types of performance security, the pros and cons, and when one type might work better than others.

David R. Cook, Jr.

Autry, Hanrahan, Hall & Cook, LLP

David's construction law practice includes complex litigation matters for owners, contractors, subcontractors, and suppliers. He assists clients in avoiding and minimizing claims, resolving disputes, and closing out problem projects. David also pursues and defends construction claims, including payment disputes and claims involving delay, acceleration, impact, disruption, interference, lack of coordination, wrongful termination, design defects and deficiencies, and differing or changed conditions. He seeks collection for clients by federal bond claims (Miller Act), state law bond and lien claims, and insurance coverage. David received his Juris Doctor from Mercer University, Walter F. George School of Law. He received his Masters of Science in Accounting from Georgia College and State University and his Bachelor of Business Administration in Accounting from Mercer University.

Mark V. Hanrahan

Autry, Hanrahan, Hall & Cook, LLP

Mark has focused his practice on construction law since 1996. He has extensive experience handling construction-related transactions and disputes. He has extensive experience drafting and negotiating construction contracts, including tailoring AIA, DBIA and other industry form contracts to meet the needs of specific clients and projects. Mark received a B.S. degree in Building Science from Auburn University. Mark received a J.D., cum laude, from Georgia State University College of Law.
